WITNESSES DESCRIBE TWO MEN WHO FLED FROM SLAYING SCENE

Two men, running out of the fog-dimmed West Roxbury field where 19-year-old Maybelle Matheson was murdered, jumping into a flivver, parked without lights, and speeding away, were described to the police today during the questioning of thirteen men.

The running pair emerged from the fog at about the time fixed as the murder hour, and one of them wore a moustache. Both men were nervous, according to the relatives of the story, two employees of the Simsbury Co. near the murder scene.

When the flivver had sped away through Baker street a short distance the lights were switched on. In the attempt to find a definite clue to the murder, Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley today ordered Captain Smith of the West Roxbury station to have the pond in the field drained by city workers.

Believing that the weapon with which Miss Matheson was slain may have been carried into the small pond, American men for trying to find it.

Another youth, believed to have been the last, entered the scene, to see her alive, called in for an interview by Police Captain James P. Smith and Inspector James P. Smith.

BOSTON WRITER DIES IN LONDON

Mrs. Anne B. Lane, noted Boston musician and daughter of the late Julius Eichberg, founder of the Boston Conservatory of Music, is dead in London. She wrote the words to the anthem, "To These, O Country," sung by school children throughout the United States.

Her husband, John Lane, London publisher, died two years ago, shortly after his death she returned to Boston, visiting Mrs. Henry M. Rogers in Beacon street.

Mrs. Lane was the author of "The Champagne Standard," "Talk of the Town" and other novels. Her first husband was Tyler Bateheller King of Boston. In 1935 she married Mr. Lane and took up her permanent residence in London.

She was born in Geneva, Switzerland, where her father was a professor of music. In 1897 Eichberg founded the Boston Conservatory of Music. He was director of music in Boston public schools at one time.

MRS. CURLEY AT CITY HOSPITAL

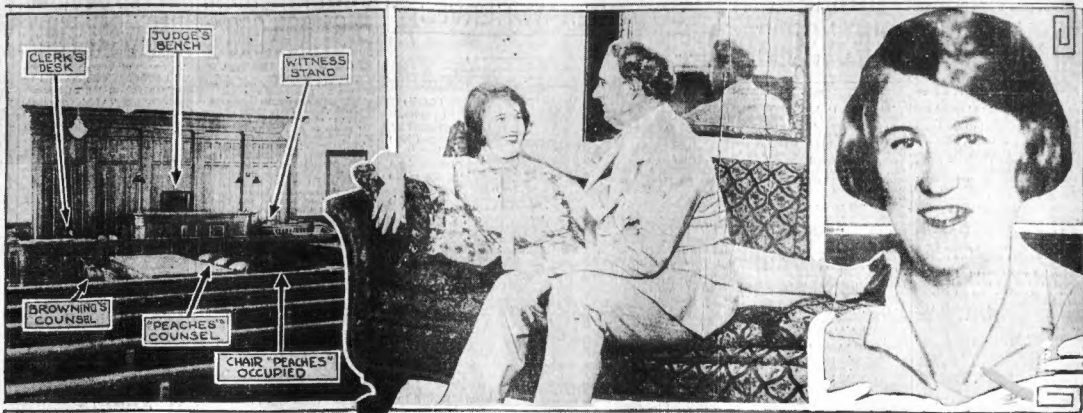

At City Hospital today, Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of the former mayor, is gradually recovering from a serious operation.

The operation was performed by Dr. David D. Beannell, assisted by Dr. Martin English, the Curley family physician. It had been intended for some time. It was stated yesterday by the former mayor, and every precaution was taken.

Mrs. Curley was taken to the hospital Saturday night. She was not seriously ill, but she had been advised by her physician to undergo the operation to correct a faulty condition.

BOSTON, MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1927

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

18 STUDENTS PAY $10 EACH FOR CRAP GAME

The usual throng in the East Cambridge District Court on Monday morning was enlivened today when Harvard students, armed in expensive fur coats and many of them carrying canes, were arraigned as a result of a raid on a crap game yesterday morning by Seattle square police.

Five of the defendants failed to make their appearance in court, but the remaining 18, with the exception of Alexander Levine, 24, of Massachusetts avenue, and John Sullivan, 23, of Park street, Weymouth, were fined $10.

These two men were fined $20 each by Judge Stone as it was charged that they were conducting the game.

Daniel Green, 20, of Thayer Hall; John Evans, 25, of Malden street; Donald Mansfield, 21, of Harvard street, and Edward Gray, 20, of Cambridge street, all Harvard students, police say, definitely Edward Fitzgerald of Cambridge street also failed to answer his name.

WON $125,000 IN BALM, NOW SEEKS LIBERTY

BELLE OF BURLINGTON SUES
Mrs. Charles Douglas Woodhouse, formerly Dorrit Stevens, "poor" Vermont girl, who won big suit against Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, her father-in-law, rich New Yorker, has petitioned for a Paris divorce.

VERMONT BELLE IN BIG SUIT ASKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Charles Douglas Woodhouse, formerly Dorrit Stevens, "belle of Burlington, Vt.," and awarded $125,000 her own bail fifteen months ago, wants a divorce.

From Paris today came word that Dorrit, whose alienation of affections suit against Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Vermont and New York banker, was productive of many sensations during its trial at Montpelier, Vt., has filed a divorce petition with the Seine Tribunal.

And if Mrs. Woodhouse continues to get the "break" as she has been getting them in previous legal matters, she will be given her divorce, for she won her last civil suit, and subsequently was cited to hear that her husband had lost out at Reno in an attempt to secure a divorce.

At the alienation trial, it was brought out that Mrs. Woodhouse and her husband had indulged in a "trial love union" before their marriage.

Woodhouse, son in a family ranked as one of the wealthiest in New York, was alleged by his wife in the trial to have dodged work usually.

She asserted that his father also had threatened to disinherit him if he did not divorce her and marry Mrs. Lillian Hendricks McCalland, sister of a Washington politician.

The jury returned a verdict of $125,000 for Mrs. Woodhouse, but Judge Montpelier, who presided at the trial, cut the amount down to $125,000.

DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT UNIT INQUIRY ASKED
Washington, Jan. 24 (A.P.)—Investigation of the prohibition enforcement unit, particularly the Coast Guard division at Detroit, was asked today in a resolution by Representative McLeod, Michigan.

The inquiry would go into prohibition enforcement generally, but first would be directed to charges that "innocent persons near Detroit" have been stopped, searched and fined upon prohibition agents, and that Colonel A. J. Hanson, in charge of the Detroit coast patrol, has seized property without legal authority.

SMILERS' ANNOUNCER IS BURIED IN LOWELL

THOUSAND AT FUNERAL
The funeral of Clyde McArdle, popular radio announcer of Station W. N. A. C. of Boston, was held at St. Peter's Church in Lowell. Photo shows the casket being borne from the church after the services.

George Washington

Surrenders

By W. E. Woodward

HAULS DOWN FLAG
Washington, attacked by superior numbers and fighting in boggy puddles, French, surrendered Fort Mifflin to the French in 1774.

SIGNS UNDER DURESS
Under the terms of surrender, Washington agreed not to build another fort on the Ohio River for, at least, a twelvemonth.

CHARMING SOUND
Washington wrote to a relative in London: "I have heard the bullets whistle; and believe me there is something charming in the sound."

KING'S REMARK
When King George II heard of Washington's remark about bullets, he said: "He has not heard many, or he would not think them very charming."

SHORT GOING TO M'ARDLE RITES

Three young women, enroute to attend the funeral of Clyde McArdle, favorite radio announcer at Station W. N. A. C. of Boston, today, were injured in Somerville when their taxi collided with a truck at Highland avenue and Cedar street. They were Evelyn Dunn of London street, Somerville; Marion Pynch of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, and Catherine Kough of Bow street, Somerville. Their injuries were slight.

Nearly 1,000 friends of McArdle, who so long carried cheer to listeners by his slightly broad-based "chief announcer" broadcasts from St. Peter's Church, Lowell, for the funeral services.

Rev. John E. Sexton was the celebrant at the solemn high mass at 10 o'clock. Rev. Francis J. Shea assisting as deacon and Rev. John Manop as subdeacon.

After the gathering of friends and relatives were addressed from many Greater Boston cities and towns.

The service included John Glessner, John Henry, Bernard Glessner, James Glessner, M. J. Sullivan and Captain James Kimball.

WOMEN GUER DADLEY TRIAL AS 'PEACHES' SOBS

As "Daddy" turned and bowed and pulled to his woman admirer, the judge stepped his gavel on the bench and announced:

"Such demonstrations as these will have no effect. If anything else of this kind happens I will be forced to clear the courtroom."

Browning rolled up to the court house in his green limousine. His advisers crowded a furore.

"Daddy" (GARY SMILING) "When some Browning—here comes Daddy," the crowd assembled outside the court house—many of them girls and young women—cried as she hurriedly alighted and walked to the courtroom.

Browning was nervous and excited. He saw one of his former blue ties with a gold star. As he stepped from his machine, a battery of cameras were turned full upon him.

"There's only to be so much of this as I can tolerate and then I'll have a fight to the death," he said, suddenly becoming serious.

"Peaches" arrived at the court house at 11:45 a. m. She was wrapped in a magnificent sable coat. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Hansen, and a nurse.

The elderly millionaire child, with "Peaches," preceded "Daddy." She and her mother were sitting at the back of the courtroom, while "Peaches" sat in the front row.

"Daddy" made his dramatic entry. "Daddy" glared at "Peaches." It was the first time he has seen her since she packed up and left him last October after their almost-marriage.

"Peaches" stout demeanor was studied in contrast to the coquettish manner assumed by her fifty-two-year-old husband. She began to cry softly just after "Daddy" appeared.

Immediately court was opened. Counsel, counsel for "Peaches" made a motion that the trial be held secret and that the press be excluded.

"It is not proper that the private life of the defendant and the plaintiff be turned to the public gaze," said John D. Mack, co-Browning's legal staff.

"A criminal case should be made public. The testimony of the character that might be brought out should be in all the papers."

that he can defend the divorce suit brought by Lita Grey Chaplin.

"If Chaplin can get his money from the estate of his father, the estate of one of the Chaplin legal staff, and fight for his child, he will be able to release more than $100,000 in cash which Chaplin has in New York."

The divorce suit was not directly involved, he declared. The government's taxes are $1,000,000 against Chaplin and $400,000 against the Chaplin Film Corporation.

Chaplin to Fight for at Least One Child

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (U.N.B.)—Upon his return to Los Angeles, Charlie Chaplin will release his youngest son, a child of 15, to his estranged wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, provided he is given the custody of the younger child, nine-month-old Sidney Garre.

Shortly before his trip East, according to a friend of Chaplin, this proposal was refused. Mrs. Chaplin, through her attorneys, sent word back to her common-law husband that she would not part with either child under any condition.

Chaplin has recovered from his slight relapse today.

New York, Jan. 24 (U.N.B.)—Charlie Chaplin, who earlier in the day had offered a slight relapse, now is reported to have recovered to leave his bed, and to be physically fit to return to Los Angeles within a few days.

Chaplin was much cheered by reports from Washington that the president of the United States had issued enough of his capital from government loans to the state to proceed with his motion picture, "Modern Times," which he has been using by Federal action pending trial.

SEAN, CHAPMAN'S OLD PAL, "IN" UNTIL MAY

Hartford, Jan. 24 (A.P.)—Walter E. Sean of Springfield, Conn., who the state's attorney has named against Gerald Chapman at the trial here nearly two years ago, is not eligible for parole until May 15 of this year, officials at State Prison said today in denying reports Sean had been released. WHAT YOU CAN DO WITH A FIVE CENT PACKAGE OF SODA CRACKERS

SOFT MOLASSES COOKIES

Cream 1 cup shortening and blend with 1/2 cup brown sugar; add 1 cup molasses and 1 cup sour milk. Mix together 3 cups pastry flour with 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. ginger, 1 tsp. cinnamon. Add to the first mixture together with 1 tsp. vinegar. Add about 8 cups more of flour, taking care to keep the dough a soft one. Chill overnight in the refrigerator or other cool place and roll out in morning—use too thin. Cut in desired shapes and bake on greased baking sheets about eighteen minutes in 375 degrees Fahrenheit oven.

For the school lunch box, 1 graham bread, raspberry jam sandwich, 1 raisin bread and peanut butter sandwich, 2 cookies, 1 apple.

A flavor your guests will remember

Turn the bottled magic of Mapleine to a thousand uses! Would you flavor your cakes, puddings, pies or candies with something so good your guests will remember and ask you for the recipe? Then you will use Mapleine! Its distinctive flavor and varied home uses have made it a household necessity from Coast to Coast.

In the morning ask your grocer for Mapleine.

SODA CRACKERS ONCE LIVED IN A BARREL

Remember way back when you bought soda crackers at the corner grocery and Fried Grocer fluted out the required amount from an open barrel, or rather open house, to wandering dirt and pinching fingers? Crackers that often presented dirty faces and hard, flinty hearts. No wonder that many of us grew up with a complex against crackers.

How the picture has changed! Today soda crackers dwell in cheery red packages, nestling side by side on grocer's shelves. Within the four protecting wrappers of the package is row on row of dainty crackers tenderly crumbed and dusted with health. Every cracker is a tiny storehouse of health, color and delicious taste.

These crackers, and they cost the whole of a round nickel a box, are the cornerstone of my Emergency Shelf—and my standby of a hundred uses. For lunch, what better than wholesome crackers placed in a shallow soup plate and covered with hot milk flavored with salt and butter? What so good for the children's in-between-times bite with a slice of milk, or more satisfying in the lunch box sandwiched round a slice of cheese, peanut butter or pate de foie gras puree? Flavored oysters take on improved character on these toasted crackers and we're all familiar with them as a basis for creamed dates or Welsh rarebit. By the way, have you ever tried the leftover rarebit cold, put between two soda crackers and then heated in the oven until piping hot and served with sour pickles? Yum, yum!

If a neighbor drops in unexpectedly in the afternoon and thearder voice says, "you needn't despair. If you're a box of these crackers on your shelves and a jar of some kind of preserves or marmalade in the office, spread the crackers with the marmalade, top with a

Whiter Clothes With No Scrubbing or Boiling

Do you know that this week you can hang out a whiter and brighter wash and spare yourself much of the hard work of wash day as well if you soak your clothes first in lukewarm water and granulated laundry soap? Even in hard water it will whip at once into thick, creamy lathering suds and in three soapy suds dirt and stains are loosened and float off in the rinsing. No more hard rubbing! You won't even need a washboard and no boiling to heat the kitchen and waste fuel. Just soak and rinse for a whiter wash. Clothes last longer too this gentle way and hands don't get that washday look.

Why don't you try this plan next washday and prove for yourself the virtues of this granulated soap that soaks clothes white with no scrubbing?

The makers of thirty leading washing machines say it's equally good in washers, too.

marshmallow or a spoonful of marshmallow cream and toast a minute or two in a hot oven. Of course, I needn't harp on the virtues of soda crackers in scalloped oysters, as a coating for croquettes, topping for an omelette or as a soup accompaniment.

SCALLOPED HAM AND CELERY

Melt 3 tbsps. butter with 3 tbsps. of flour. Add 1 1/2 cups of chicken broth (nonion cubes or canned soup may be used, or field cream) and stir until smooth. Simmer two minutes, then add 3/4 tsp. salt, 1 cup finely chopped ham, one cup finely chopped celery, which has been parboiled for 10 minutes. Arrange the ham and celery in alternate layers in a buttered dish, cover with the sauce and a thick layer of grated cheese. Bake with paprika and bake until the cheese is melted.

STORE ADJUSTER

"It was washable I but NOT the way you did it"

"When I bought it they told me it was washable. And it was washable, but not the way I did it. It was a printed chiffon—a lovely dress, green and white, one of the newest designs. I washed it myself—not in Lux, I must confess. It faded badly—so badly that I wouldn't have worn it again. I took it back to the store and reminded them that they had sold it to me as washable. They said, of course, they assumed that I would wash such a delicate thing in Lux."

"The design and style of the dress pleased me so much that I bought another exactly like the first, to take with me on a trip to Bermuda. I've always washed it in Lux and will wear the dress again this summer. It still looks like new."

Janet Taylor, 125 E. 59th St.
New York City

CRUMBY TREATMENT . . . isn't it?

See!—how it splits in two without crumbling.

One crunch—a great crumble and his manly chest is dappled with cracker crumbs. That's no way to treat a guest or even a timid husband.

To prevent just this each Sunshine Soda Cracker is scored down the middle so that it splits in two, and can be boldly bitten into without danger of a general collapse. This is probably a small thing to be talking about in a soda cracker whose chief virtue is its fine flavor due to Sunshine baking by the Full Grain Process.

But we want you to know everything about this excellent cracker.

"NEW? Nonsense, it's been washed a dozen times"

"As I was putting away some freshly laundered underthings a friend came in. She exclaimed over a lovely apricot-colored slip of rayon. 'Rayon certainly is beautiful when new,' she said, 'but, my dear, you know it simply won't wash successfully.'"

"When I said that I had washed that rayon slip a dozen times, she was the most surprised person you ever saw! Of course, I always use Lux for washing rayon—just as I do for silks and other nice things."

What better recommendation could rice have than that? Ask your physician. He will tell you how easily rice is digested, how it makes strength and retains it, how it builds bone and muscle.
A prominent New York hospital places rice on its diet list three times a day as a cereal for breakfast, as a vegetable for lunch and as a pudding for dinner dessert. It is one food that need never grow monotonous. Rice can be served in a new way every day. There are over three hundred ways of cooking it. Preparing food for sick people in the home is less of a problem when you use rice.
Good rice cooks to fluffy perfection in twenty minutes. Do not cook in a double boiler, but in a saucepan. One cupful of rice to eight cupfuls of turkley boiling water. Lift the rice in starchy through the fingers and boil for twenty minutes without stirring. When done, drain through a sieve and place this in a few minutes over the steam containing a little water. Fluffy! Snow-white! Each grain puffed separately.

Doctors and dietitians recommend rice, which has been cleared and machine-packed so that washing before cooking is unnecessary and full strength of the grain is preserved.
Several famous food experts have prepared a new booklet of recipes showing a number of ways of cooking rice for the home meal as well as for the sickroom. This booklet will be sent free to any person who will drop me a line.

"You are better than a French chef!"
exclaimed my husband

TO WIN praise like that from a food-hoarding husband is, as all wives know, a real triumph. Here's how I did it.
Over both sides of my steak—before cooking—I spread a generous layer of Gulden's Mustard. Then I placed it on the fire.
"Great," said my husband, "you certainly know how to season food. You're better than a French chef!"

COOKING SECRETS OF FAMOUS CHEFS
Try These Tasty Meat Balls for Tonight's Dinner
Show me anything more tasty and economical than hamburger balls made from lean bottom of the round beef, put through the home kitchen chopper, properly prepared and marinated, shaped into balls and browned to a turn.
A delicious variation of the usual hamburger balls is made by adding to one pound of chopped hamburger one teaspoon of grated onion and one tablespoon of prepared mustard. Season to taste with salt and pepper and, last of all, add one tablespoon of boiling water. Shape lightly into balls and then coat each ball with the mustard. Place on a well-greased rolling rack and brown each side to a turn. The mustard flavored meat juices form a delicious gravy and I'll guarantee that your family will say they never tasted a more appetizing dish. Of course, as in everything else, there is good, better and best in mustard. Our preference is no secret. If you're interested to see.

Thrilling Romance of Youth in Boston

CHAPTER XLVII.
It was two o'clock when Honey Lou walked up the three flights of stairs to the flat that night. As she first entered the door, she found Jack must be asleep and she thanked him for it.

But as she started through the hall on tiptoe and softly opened the door of the guest room that was now her room, she heard him snore on the floor above his bed. The tiny sound seemed to reach like thunder in her ears. "Honey Lou," he called in a voice that she could hear across the hall. "Honey Lou, I'm here!" Honey Lou stood still. At six o'clock she could hear him snore where she had been. She had meant to tell him that she had spent the day with Alice and Timothy. But now, at two in the morning, the just conflict of parties after what had happened— "I'm tired, boy," she said and her utter weariness showed in her tone. "Don't need me until tomorrow morning. Wait till I've had some sleep."

Silence. Then his voice again: "Who brought you home just now?" Honey Lou answered shortly, and closed the door. She could never tell him now that she had been with Alice and Timothy. What had happened, she would never find out if he did. She would have to tell him that she thought, and refused to go any further. She put her hand on the door knob, and was about to turn it, when she heard him say, "Wait a minute. I'm coming." She was awakened by a sound as if a door was being opened. She went straight up in bed and snored her eyes out the sleep out of them.

Jack stood there in his blue suit. He had stayed in his room during the past week, and Honey Lou had wondered about it—but had not asked him about it.

Chapped or reddened skin quickly responds to the Remoal treatment. The puny and scaly skin of Remoal Soap tend to prevent chapping. But when exposure to sun or wind has already roughened and burned the skin, the exposure to Remoal treatment relieves the tender, chapped, scaly skin. The morning and evening use of Remoal Soap helps to restore skin health.

Many women have found it invaluable, also, for ridging the skin of pimples, blemishes, rashes, etc.

Free offer
Your druggist sells Remoal Soap and Cream, but if you wish to try before you buy, send to Dept. 60, Remoal, Baltimore, Md., for a free sample or booklet.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with salt water before breakfast.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so there is no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jal Salts is inexpensive; cannot harm, makes a delightful beverage. Lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up your water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

To Stop a Cold in One Day

The best home use of this preparation is E. W. Brown Since 1853.

Are You a Joy Killer?

By Beatrice Fairfax.
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.
NO ONE likes being called a "Joy-killer" or a "Jack Ass." Here is the experience of a girl who was called a "joy-killer." But she was not the end of her story. "Dear Miss Fairfax," she writes.

thought of her high manner with him, biting things and had said. "I can let him know I'm sorry—I can do it. It won't help much, now, but I'll try better."

This was the thought that took her up to his apartment. She let herself into the room, thrilled to find the door open. She found a color—deep chairs, a few good pictures—she lost of taste.

His bedroom—and I've been such a common little head. I'm almost ashamed to see him again. Well—it's the last time—the last time.

He came in early, gave her a swift, anxious look, and smiled broadly on the table.

Patience the old-fashioned, he explained. "Thought you'd eat here. Good. I haven't—never. I could do something."

It was a new experience to come to meet him—gentle, kind, eager, sofly content.

He said he wanted to tell you how sorry I am for everything. Didn't mean what I said to you in the hall. You know that. But you've always been wonderful. I haven't—never. Not that I didn't care a lot too much. I'm just selfish. I suppose.

Of course he denied that. She looked into his eyes and saw the old man. He looked in his arms and talked to her as if he had been a child. Peggy said needn't have gone to her father, he declared. She was rather mean. Didn't treat her right at the ball.

Stan looked at the old man. Though all for business, that one. Good fellow to work for. Did she know that?—was going to be a little better position in the office. Made you feel good. Tell the truth he'd been tired of stalling around; that's why he got the job in the first place. Realized his shortcoming, he said. He was the kind of a guy went to the dogs if he wasn't kept busy. Funny scene in the family somewhere.

She listened, smiling, thoughts pounding through her mind. "The last—the last! This is goodbye!"

He talked on, caught by the intense aspect of her new mood. Her awareness, something of his own. She was not the girl he had known in her before. Not even now.
